

The Internet and Elections: Comparing Institutional Factors in the U.S., Japan, Korea, and Taiwan

A talk by Dr. Shoko Kiyohara
Meiji University, Japan

Discussion Facilitated by Dr. Diana Owen, Georgetown University

Monday, April 3, 2017 at 5 p.m.

Car Barn 3520 Prospect Street, N.W., Suite 311

Reception to Follow

Dr. Shoko Kiyohara is Associate Professor of Political Science, School of Information and Communication, Meiji University, Japan. She is a Visiting Researcher with Georgetown University's Communication, Culture, and Technology Program. Her research interests include American politics and the Internet's role in elections.

FOR MORE INFORMATION CONTACT: OWEND@GEORGETOWN.EDU